

The Joint Task Force For Teen Issues Presents: Grade Level Parlor Meetings For Current Gann Academy Parents

Grade-level parlor meetings, facilitated by educators and professionals in our school community, are safe forums for parents to share experiences and ask tough questions about the pressures and joys of raising a teenager in the 21st century. The new "Safe House Agreement" (a year-long project of Gann's Joint Task Force on Teen Issues and senior administrators), Tips for Hosting a teen gathering, AAA Driving Contract and other resources will be available for parents.

WHEN & WHERE:

The school-to-parent and parent-to-parent communication and collaboration are critical if we are going to address important issues facing our children in a proactive, caring, and educational way. We believe that these meetings are an important first step to involving our entire parent community in the work that our Teen Issues Joint Task Force has already begun.
